

Introducing Dr. Marian Fritzeimer, Ed.D.

Author, Speaker, and Educator

Education

Dr. Fritzeimer, Ed.D. chose Educational Leadership and Organizational Studies with an Emphasis Adolescent Development, Juvenile Justice, and Public Policy from St. Mary's College of California for her doctorate.

She began her education journey at Sacramento City College and earned her A.A. She returned to her alma mater, Fresno State, to obtain a master's degree in child development when her daughters entered school. She previously attained her B.A. and teaching credential from Fresno State.

Marian's a life-long learner and loves school: either as a student or a teacher.

Experience

A great education must be connected to authentic experience. Dr. Fritzeimer, Ed.D. has been married to her husband Rick for over 35 years. She's also the mother of two adult daughters, mother-in-law to two sons-in-law, and Grams to three of the most precious grandchildren.

Her first job was Vice President of The Fritzeimer Foundation while raising her children. She also has almost twenty-five years of teaching experience from preschoolers through college students. Most recently she was a child development college professor.

Marian combines her personal and professional experiences to provide real-life examples people relate to and engages them with her multi-modality teaching methods.

Excellence

Dr. Fritzeimer's standards are to write, speak, and educate with excellence. As a research geek, Marian loves researching topics and selecting only the best and most relevant for her endeavors. Her speaking engagements are prepared and delivered with excellence. Her blog and 3-book parenting series derives from speaking topics. She regularly attends professional development workshops and conferences to be current in her field.
